Fabric Suggestions

The "Baby Sacque" variation is ideal for soft knit fabrics. Brushed cotton, flannel, Swiss flannel, as well as other soft, medium weight or textured fabrics may be used.

Note: If you are using a knit fabric to sew your daygown, you may find it helpful to use a more stable fabric, such as a polyester-cotton blend or a pima broadcloth, for the bias binding on the neckline and sleeves.

"Baby Sacque" is a flat raglan sleeve pattern with three variations. Designs include a traditional sacque pattern which is ideal for soft knits, a variation with a snap casing hemline, and a monogrammed design with Swiss trims. The daygown features a back closing with a placket or with buttons. Other designs features include a long straight sleeve, long puff sleeve, and a three-quarter length sleeve. The multi-sized pattern includes sizes preemie, newborn, infant, and large and includes shadow work designs. It also includes step-by-step instructions with numerous photographs and illustrations and detailed instructions for sewing with soft knits. It is easy to sew. This is a pattern you will use many times for your own baby as well as for baby gifts.
